River City student survives accident, offers a message

MICHAEL JONES

By Jeanette Keith
Correspondent

Michael Jones, a varsity player for River City High School was looking forward to his baseball game against Delta High School on April 27th.

"We are going to smoke you," said Michael as he teased his friends Tommy and Shane, who play for Delta. It was Sunday afternoon, April 16th. Easter vacation had just started and they were making plans for the week.

About 11:30 p.m., Michael left Tommy's house.

"I went to Taco Bell and then headed home over the Palamidessi bridge," remembered Michael. "I was driving a little too fast in the rain. I was thinking about getting home, eating and going to bed. While I was messing with the car radio, I looked up to see the light at the bottom of the bridge and it was red. I hit the brakes and realized about 200 feet before I reached the light that the brakes had locked up. I couldn't steer away from the light pole and my car bounced off it and spun around down the embankment, coming to a stop in the field. The driver's door wouldn't open, but I managed to get the passenger door open. I tried to stand up, but I fell. I knew my legs were broken. I pulled myself up the embankment to the side of the road and tried to stop someone."

It was 11:45 p.m., and Michael was lying in the rain on the side of the road.

"About ten cars passed and I was afraid I might get run over. Finally, this man with glasses, a mustache and a black hat with "SC" on it stopped. He told me he had to go call for help and promised to come right back and he did. He talked to me and propped me up with his back against mine until the paramedics arrived. I later learned that his name was Reed Collins."

Michael immediately recognized one of the firefighters who arrived on the scene.

"When I saw Wally Enos, I knew I was going to be okay," said Michael. "I was in good hands."

Wally, busy doing his job, took one look at the mangled car and was amazed the boy had survived the accident. The next day he was surprised to find out the boy had been Michael, a family friend.

At 12:45 a.m., while watching television, Michael's sister, Kelly, ignored the knock on the door.

"Michael is too lazy to use his key," explained Kelly. "He usually knocks and then knocks louder. I thought it was just Michael at the door. When the bell started ringing, I hoped it was Michael."

Cricket, Michael's mother, went to the door.

"It's a parent's worst nightmare, opening a door and seeing a police officer. He asked, 'Is this the home of Michael Jones?' When he told me Michael had been in an accident, I didn't know whether to vomit or faint. He said Michael was conscious and at least one of his legs was badly broken. I called my friend Tim to drive me to the hospital. Waiting for Tim was the longest ten minutes of my life and I also feared there may have been someone else in the car with Michael."

Cricket, Tim and Kelly waited two hours in the emergency room before his mother was allowed to see Michael.

"I was told both legs were severely broken, both ankles were also broken, the growth plates were destroyed and his left heel was crushed," said Cricket. "But as bad as it was, it could have been so much worse."

The next evening, with 30 of his friends in the waiting room, Michael underwent surgery on his legs and heel. Michael will go home in a wheelchair. In two to three months, he should be able to bear weight on one leg, allowing him to walk on crutches.

From his hospital bed, Michael has a message for his friends.

"It's not worth going 10 or 15 miles an hour faster to get home 30 seconds sooner. My grades are going to suffer, my summer is gone, sports are gone. I won't be playing in the game against Delta. It's just not worth it. Hopefully, someone besides me will learn from reading this."

Cricket adds, "Our friends have been wonderful, supportive and kind. We cannot thank them and Reed Collins enough for everything they have done. Like Michael, I pray this accident will make everyone, not just kids, think when they drive. Thankfully, Michael was not alone that night. I believe there was an angel riding with him."

Two wounded in local shooting

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Two men were wounded and one remains in critical condition after a shooting on the 1300-block of Hobson Ave. in West Sacramento Sunday night.

Sgt. Tom Bowler of the West Sacramento Police Department said a motive is still unclear.

"We don't know exactly how the encounter took place," he commented. But what is known is that a 33-year old West Sacramento man and a 19-year old Sacramento man were walking together eastbound on Hobson at about 11 p.m. when a car stopped and occupants began shooting at the pair.

"The 33-year old sustained gunshot wounds to the leg," said Bowler, "but his condition his good. The other person was shot multiple gunshot wounds, including two to the head. He is in critical condition."

The two were taken to a local hospital by ambulance.

Identification of the victims was not available prior to press time. Bowler said a detective would be attempting to again interview both victims yesterday.

Sought in connection with the incident are occupants of a white, two-door Plymouth or Chrysler Reliant or Aries, which had nonfunctioning brake or tail lights. Anyone with information is asked to contact Bowler at 372-2461 ext. 264; information can be received anonymously.

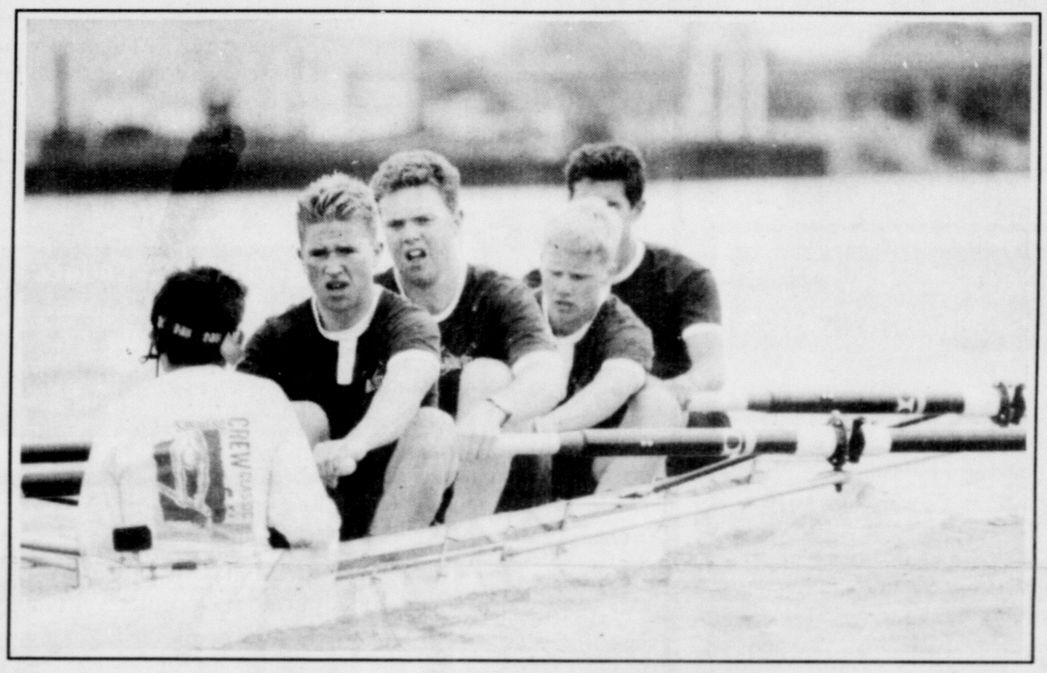

The car description contains "similarities" to that of a car involved in another shooting incident the previous night, said Bowler.

In that incident shortly after midnight, according to police records, a woman reported watching two cars travel eastbound on Carrie St. They stopped at a set of speed bumps, and she saw gunfire from one vehicle to the other. Following the suspect car from what she thought was a safe distance, she came to the Lighthouse Dr./ Kegle Dr. area, when the suspect fired two or three shots at her own car.

Neither she nor her vehicle were hit, and police found no physical evidence of the gunfire.

At Sunday's shooting location, police recovered a number of shell casings.

Rowing for the finish line

The "powerhouse" Bay Area team won most of the 1.25 mile races involving the two squads. River City Rowing Club's high school team was the home team for the match, training regularly at the port. River City's team includes boys and girls from River City High School and other Sacramento-area schools.

Li'l Suze's therapy isn't working: dog almost dies

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

As many of you know, from time to time I've reported on the strange behavior of my daughter's new dog, Suzie, a little jet-black terrier-mix now called "Li'l Suze". More specifically, I've mentioned that instead of going outside to go to the bathroom, Li'l Suze prefers to do her business inside my daughter's apartment; she has powerful hind legs and loves to leap up on tables, counter tops, and even refrigerators; she doesn't just beg for food, she snatches it right out of your hand or swipes if off your plate when you're not looking; and worst of all, if you leave her alone for more than 15 minutes, she tears up the carpet, gnaws on the furniture, scratches paint off doors and walls, drags anything that is edible out of kitchen cabinets, and basically trashes any room you leave her in.

In my last column about Li'l Suze, I reported that her regular veterinarian had come to the conclusion that she has serious "abandonment issues" and is in need of intensive doggie therapy, which my daughter decided to get for her, even though the whole process is quite expensive and results are often mixed.

In addition to receiving a prescription for "doggie Prozac", Li'l Suze was given a thorough psychological workup and placed on a complex behavioral modification program aimed at radically changing some of her more obnoxious behaviors. My daughter was also thrilled when she was informed by a team of veterinarian specialists who work with problem dogs all the time that "Suzie is extremely smart and has the potential to become a really great dog!"

Anyway, to cut to the chase, last Thursday night, my daughter and her roommate decided to go out to dinner, and to comply with part of Li'l Suze's behavioral modification program, they set up a video camera mounted on a tri-pod aimed at filming Li'l Suze's behavior when she is left alone. The goal was to capture Li'l Suze in action so her doggie analyst will be able to see exactly what craziness my daughter's dog is up to when she's suffering from "Separation Anxiety & Attention Seeking Behavior."

My daughter had informed me Thursday afternoon that she was going to be video-taping Li'l Suze while she and her roommate were out to dinner that evening, so when I heard her voice on the telephone at 10:30 p.m. later that night, I just assumed she was calling to let me how the experiment had gone. Boy, was I wrong!

"You're not going to believe where I am," said my daughter, who was obviously upset.

"Where?" I asked with concern.

"At the emergency veternarian's office. Li'l Suze is really sick! She might even die!"

"What happened this time?" I asked, hoping to help calm my daughter down.

"Well, while we were out to dinner, Li'l Suze somehow got back up on top of the refrigerator again and used her teeth and paws to open some beautifully wrapped Easter presents from my roommate's mother."

"Did she fall off the refrigerator and break her neck or something?" I asked. "I told you she was going to do that sooner or later, didn't I?"

"No, it's worse than that, Dad. We didn't know it or we would have hidden the packages, but they had mostly Easter chocolates in them, and the veterinarian says he thinks Li'l Suze ate at least a whole pound of pure chocolate, which he says is more than enough to kill most dogs her size. Apparently chocolate is very, very toxic when a dog eats it."

"That crazy dog ate a whole pound of chocolate?" I asked in amazement.

"At least."

"And you say the emergency vet doesn't think Li'l Suze is going to pull through," I asked, a little ashamed that I was half-pulling for the doggie Grim Reaper.

"He says it'll be at least six hours before we know if she's going to make it. They're pumping her poor little stomach as we speak."

"And how are you holding up?"

"Pretty good, I guess, but I'm going to have to leave her here overnight so they can keep an eye on her and that's probably going to make her separation anxiety worse than ever. Plus I've got to get home and start cleaning the carpets. She barfed all over the apartment before we came home and rushed her to the vet."

Well, for all you animal lovers out there, Li'l Suze indeed surprised all her doctors (they said she had youth, physical fitness, and lots of luck on her side) and for better or worse, she has lived to fight another day. In fact, as I write this, she is out in my backyard having bowel movements every five minutes or so (they force fed her a lot of charcoal to help absorb the toxins in her system) and I of course have my shovel at the ready.

"How much did this last little visit to the vet cost you?" I asked my daughter earlier in the day, before she took off for work and left Li'l Suze in my care.

"The first estimate was $500," explained my daughter, "but since Li'l Suze only had to stay in the hospital one night, it only turned out to be about $300."

"So, let's see," I said, quickly adding up in my head some of the previous costs my daughter has already incurred which are directly related to Li'l Suze, "now correct me if I'm wrong, but so far, hasn't that crazy dog cost you more than $2,000?"

"But she's going to be worth it," my daughter assured me, "just you wait and see."

"But Carrie," I tried to explain, "with $2,000, you could have bought yourself a half-dozen or so brand new Golden Retrievers whose parents were well-behaved show dogs!"

"But they wouldn't have been as sweet as my Li'l Suze!"

Sports Insider: Kings & River Cats

By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento Kings (44-38) ran into a powerful force in Los Angeles on Sunday and it wasn't the Easter Bunny. The Los Angeles Lakers, led by Shaquille O'Neal, beat the Kings 117-107 before a sell-out crowd of 18,997 fans at the new Staples Center. Shaq was unstoppable scoring 46 points and grabbing 17 rebounds. Kobe Bryant supported Shaq's effort with 23 points and Glen Rice added 18 for the Lakers, who haven't won a championship since 1988.

Chris Webber had a great game scoring a career playoff high of 28 points before fouling out with 6:53 left to play. Jason Williams added 20 points and Tony Delk scored 17 for the Kings in a losing effort.

History is against the Kings as they prepare for game two in Los Angeles. Since the 16-team playoff format was instituted 16 years ago, the underdogs have won just two of the 32 first-round series between No.1 and No.8 seeds.

Game two is set for Thursday, April 27th (7:30 p.m. -ch.31, TNT) at the Staples Center. The Lakers won 16 of their last 17 regular-season games at Staples Center, and their 36-5 home record tied Indiana for the NBA's best. The Kings on the other hand lost 14 of their final 17 away games to post a 14-27 road record. The Kings led the NBA in scoring this season, averaging 105 points per game, while allowing 102 points. The Lakers ranked sixth in scoring with a 100.8 average, and their defense allowed 92.3 points.

The Arco Arena will be jumping on Sunday, April 30th (2:30 p.m.) for game 3. NBC-TV really wanted to televise a game from the wild and loud Arco so they stretched out this best of five series to land in Sacramento on a weekend. NBC's playoff contract only allows them to televise weekend games. Go KINGS!!

The River Cats had two their best hitters in Terrence Long and Adam Piatt called up to Oakland. Long is hitting a cool .400 with 15 RBI and Piatt leads the team with 5 home runs and his hitting .327. To make room for these two sluggers the A's sent down Jeremy Giambi and placed John Jaha on the 15 day disabled list. The Cats are still on the road playing in Salt Lake City and then travel to Albuquerque (Dodgers Triple-A team) to play the Dukes in a four game series. Single game tickets for the River Cats go on sale Saturday, April 29th. Call 447-HITS.

Boxing returns to Sacramento on Monday, May 1st at the Radisson Hotel featuring Juan Lazcano (21-2,1, 15 KO's). Lazcano, who lives and trains in West Sacramento, will be put to the test against former Mexican National Super-featherweight Champion Eduardo "Lalo" Perez (27-8, 21 KO's). The card will also feature Eliza Olson (2-0) in a women's four-round bout. Rene Silva, Eric Regan and Dominic Robles will round out this Monday night at the fights presented by Don Chargin Promotions. Tickets priced at $22, $32 and $42 can be purchased at Pro-Venture Travel, 1420 Merkley Ave (372-9294) in West Sacramento.

Quality auto repair at reasonable prices

(Note: Below is the latest in a series of News-Ledger profiles of the newspaper's advertisers. Enjoy!)

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor

Corie Wiest and Rommel Carlos of Advanced Auto Center

Rommel Carlos, the owner of West Sacramento's Advanced Auto Center, which is located at the corner of Merkley Avenue and Westacres Road (across from Raley's), left his native Philippines in 1984 at the age of 17 in search of a better life.

"America offered so many more opportunities," explained Rommel, "and one of the first things I did when I arrived was join the United States Air Force Reserve, which I served in for six years. That was a very valuable experience and a good way to meet people and see some of the country."

Rommel worked for the Southland Corporation for five years, but by the early 1990's, he had decided he wanted to own and operate his own business.

"Although I didn't have any real background in the automotive repair business," said Rommel, "it seemed to me that it was something a hard-working, honest person could succeed at. My own experiences with auto repair shops had been so negative -- I felt like I had been cheated on a couple of occasions -- and I was sure that if I just treated customers honestly and fairly I would do well."

In 1994, Rommel bought an automotive chain lube and tune franchise, but he soon came to the conclusion that it wasn't what he wanted.

"For one thing," explained Rommel, "I didn't like the way the company trained their employees. It was as if they didn't really expect to ever see the customer again and there was way too much pressure put on sales. I was sure that to succeed in the automotive repair business, you needed to slowly built up a loyal clientele that would return to have maintenance work done throughout the life of their cars. So, after 11 months, I decided I really wanted to do things my own way and that's when I opened up Advanced Auto Center in West Sacramento."

Rommel says the success of Advanced Auto Center is really pretty simple to explain.

"First," said Rommel, "I firmly believe in hiring only qualified mechanics. It's not fair to the customer to have their cars experimented on by inexperienced employees trying to learn their profession. Second, we always tell the customer the truth. It's simply not worth it in the long run to charge customers for something they don't really need done. We want our customers to come back again and again, and that will only happen if we do quality work and are completely truthful with them."

Rommel's right hand man is Cory Wiest, who has worked along side of him since Advanced Auto Center first opened its doors for business in 1995.

"I give a lot of the credit for the success of Advanced Auto Center to Cory," said Rommel. "He's extremely competent and very patient when it comes to explaining to customers what's wrong with their car. We both have the same philosophy about how to succeed in the auto repair business and our customers just love him."

"We're the only AAA approved auto repair facility in West Sacramento," said Cory, "and there's a reason for that. Rommel is a very good, articulate businessman who makes sure that things are done the right way. We never put any pressure on our customers and I can truthfully say Advanced Auto Center is the most honest repair shop I've ever been around."

Dick Gould of Sierra Chemical Company in West Sacramento said, "Advanced Auto Center has been taking care of our company vehicles as well as my own personal car for many years and I'm very pleased with the work they do. They've consistently given me excellent service and they've never tried to sell me something I don't need. They're very honest and they seem to make a real effort to do right by their customers."

"I went to Advanced Auto Center because a mechanic at another repair shop had caused [illegible] for me while working on my car," said Steve Marschke, the editor of the News-Ledger. "The next time I have a problem with my car, I'm going to Advanced Auto Center first."

West Sacramentan Lori Whitesel has been having Advanced Auto Center do maintenance on her car for almost six years and she wouldn't think of letting anyone else touch it.

"I'm single and not very mechanical and it's really important to me to be able to trust the people who work on my car," said Lori. "I know that Cory will always tell me the truth and never try to rip me off and that's really nice to know when something goes wrong with my car. I highly recommend Advanced Auto Center."

Away from work, Rommel is the President of the Sacramento Maharlika Lions Club and last July, on behalf of that organization, he was instrumental in organizing a medical/surgical mission to his native Philippines that brought much needed medical equipment and expertise to people in desperate need of both.

"We will be going on our third mission to the Philippines this summer," explained Rommel. "The people there have a real need for medical knowledge and equipment and it's been very rewarding to me to be able to help."

Rommel and his wife, Marylou, have two children; a 15-year-old son, M.J, who attends River City High School, and an 8-year-old daughter, Patricia, who goes to Southport Elementary School.

(Note: Advanced Auto Center is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday thru Friday; 7:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. on Saturdays; and is closed on Sundays. Their phone number is 373-1772 and their new ad in the News-Ledger, complete with valuable coupons, is on page 7.)

and improved their record to 14 wins and just 3 defeats in 2000.

River City took three of the four singles matches as Khonesavanh Lattasima remained unbeaten on the year with a 6-2, 6,3 win in the top girls contest and Sokpin Phoung outlasted the moonball tactics of her opponent at #2 girls singles for a 6-1,5-7,6-3 victory. Andy Amphonephong played his best singles match of the season in a 6-0,6-4 win at the top of the boys side while the lone singles loss for the Raiders was Sisavat Phouanglasy's 2-6, 2-6 defeat at the boys #2 spot.

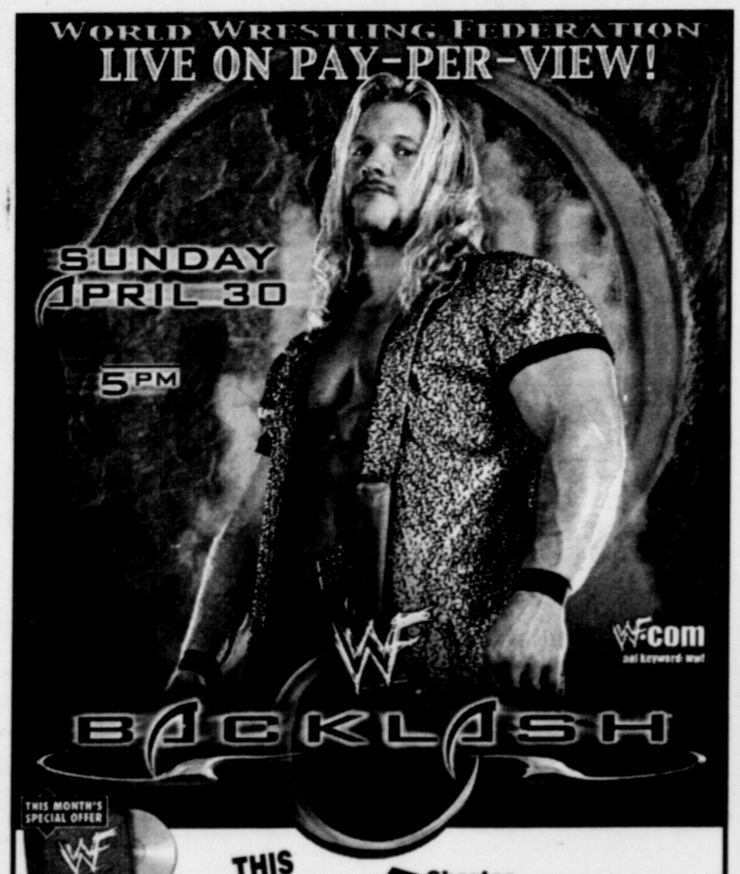

In doubles, R.C. was only able to get a pair of wins in five contests. Casey Insixiengmay and Michelle Jones had an early 4-2 lead before fading 8-10 in mixed and the Raider boys doubles teams both lost. In the #1 position, Sokhear Touch and Viengkham Amphonephong were blown out 2-10 while teammates Erik Rodriguez and William Clayton saw a 7-5 lead disappear before falling in a tiebreaker 9-10 (3-7) at the #2 spot. Fortunately for the visitors, it was a different story in the two girls doubles matches. Erin Cheechov and Keonakone Lattasima won easily at #1 girls doubles, 10-3, and the #2 girls duo of Ka Yang and Khounthavy Montry also cruised, 10-2.

The break from classes is over now, but the team is still on vacation from Golden Empire League play for another week. R.C. has a one game lead in the league standings heading into next week's showdown at Colfax on Tuesday afternoon. The Raiders are 9-1 in the G.E.L. while both Colfax and Marysville are 8-2. The lone match for the Raiders this week is a non-league contest in San Andreas against Calaveras of the Mother Lode League.

District pre-spends bond money

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The Washington Unified School District has approved the expenditure of over $800,000 towards school bond-related construction costs. The money is expected to be reimbursed from school bond proceeds – although the district has promised not to sell the bonds unless about $20 million in matching state dollars arrives, and that money hasn't arrived yet.

When voters were considering approval of the $17.5 million local bond measure in November, the W.U.S.D. school board adopted a resolution promising not to sell the bonds without the matching state money in hand.

A lawsuit filed in Los Angeles County Superior Court could delay or threaten that state money. The Sacramento Bee reported last month that the Mexican American Legal Defense Fund and the Asian Pacific American Legal Center planned to use the lawsuit to challenge the way state school money is distributed. Inner-city districts are being shortchanged, they allege, and districts such as Los Angeles Unified are not getting their fair share of state school construction funds.

Meanwhile, Washington Unified has approved $818,531 for architectural services to plan the construction project planned here by the local bond measure.

The district has also approved a $14,000 expenditure for geotechnical and topographical surveys needed for new construction at River City High School, and $2,100 for a hazardous materials assessment of the school prior to construction. Both costs are expected to be paid back from bond funds.

"If the bond money doesn't come through," commented board member Pat Flint, "we 'eat' these bills. It could come out of (the district's) redevelopment money or developer fee money."

The largest piece of the pre-approved bond expenditure is the estimated $818,531 cost of architectural work for the estimated $12,620,625 in construction intended by the bond measure. Flint said that the architectural plans had to be commissioned in order for W.U.S.D. to get in line for the state funds.

"We had to do the architectural fee specifically because we had to get plans in to the state," explained Flint.

The estimated architectural fee has risen from $613,898, district staff reports indicate.
